James H. Boyd’s Makerspace is an area that provides hands-on, creative ways for students to design, experiment, and invent as they engage in science, engineering, and tinkering. It is a place where students can come together to share resources and knowledge, work on projects, connect, and create. In the Makerspace Club, children will be inspired to become participatory learners to uncover their talents, needs, and interests by making, producing, solving, creating, collaborating and thinking. Makers will have the opportunity to create low tech structures using everything from paper towel rolls to bubble wrap to Legos, as well as designing high tech creations using Dash & Dots, Ozobots and SnapCircuits.
